Broken Age tells the story of two teenagers, each fighting against the traditions that bind them. Deep in the guts of a starship, Shay Volta tries to escape the clutches of a suffocating mother AI, while Vella Tartine is chosen to sacrifice the mysterious monster to save his village. Gorgeously rendered 2D graphics, a neat soundtrack and a truly well-built adventure to make broken age keeper. This episodic mobile RPG captures the core of story and charm while cropping the grind of a common genre. You appreciate chibi-style graphics that still manage to capture many of the same story beats and combat complexity. The first episode is available for free download; you can purchase the following chapters as an in-app purchase or as one collection. Start with accessible trivia questions, add live hosted games and finish it off with real money payouts, and you'll soon find yourself reading down to the minutes of daily quizzes (plus the occasional midday quiz). Each game usually features 12 choice of choice of trivia questions, players get 10 seconds to answer each one. Get them all right, and you'll get a share of the prize that's been money. HQ has also rolled out games that focus on sports trivia and word puzzles. MORE: Watch all the top trivia games on AndroidImage 11 11Si nothing brings the party together like get Dance. However, not everyone knows how to dance, which is where Just Dance Now comes in This mobile spinoff of the hit console series brings more than 200 titles on iOS and Android smartphones, including Uptown Funk by Mark Ronson, Jailhouse Rock by Elvis Presley and (for some immeasurable reason) Hungarian Dance No 5 by Johannes Brahms. Although the game is free to download, you must pay for most songs. However, you can buy a temporary pass for as little as $1 an hour - great for one night's entertainment. You can also cast it on the big screen via Google Cast or Apple AirPlay. This is another opportunity outside the Android Market, which has seen explosive growth but continues to experience growing pains, including a slowdown, and in the last week or so, disappearing apps and misstated download numbers. Check out Vodafone's release after the break. I can't believe you did this. VODAFONE LAUNCHES 360 SHOP ANDROID Developers able to create and distribute apps for customized Android phones on Tuesday, June 15, 2010. Vodafone announced today that it is expanding its grip on Vodafone's 360 services with the launch of 360 Shop for Android. The announcement underscores Vodafone's commitment to bringing 360 Shop into the popular, market-leading hands used and doing so, offering developers a very attractive native or cross-platform proposal. The Android 360 Store is designed specifically to ensure that customers can easily search and browse apps that best suit their needs and interests. This is achieved through a sophisticated personalized recommendations tool and dynamically changing ad areas such as best ratings, best downloads, categories, and filtered lists. Feature content promotions are run by local market editorial experts to further introduce local relevant applications. All paid content is charged to the customer through operator billing, and the money is regularly transferred to the developer's bank account, making it easy for developers to track revenue. Through 360 Shop for Android, Vodafone gives app developers the ability to publish either JIL or native Android apps to the 360 Shop. Developers can also use existing Vodafone features such as clear pricing, transparent review process and comprehensive reporting. Developers want to know that their app is seen by consumers and 360 Shop for Android is designed to maximize opportunities for content promotion, said Lee Epting, director of Content Services at Vodafone Group. Preliminary data indicate that up to a third of the catalogue is exposed in one day. This is a market-leading approach that allows both customers and developers to 360 out of the store. A custom Android operating system and directly accessible handset on the home screen, the 360 Shop for Android will launch this summer with HTC Wildfire and Sony Ericsson Xperia X10 Mini Pro. 360 Shop is one destination for all digital content, integrating music, video, ringtones and apps, ensuring that it continues to earn millions from existing Vodafone live! Customers. In addition, phones will come with 360 Music services embedded and Vodafone People will soon be available to download. To date, more than 8,500 apps have been published in 360 stores. There are over 100 different phones to access Vodafone's 360 services. With further phones due to launch all year round with 360 Shop preloaded, Vodafone 360 will continue to provide the developer community with greater access to more customers. Customers.
